HSBC-AUW School of Apparel

Asian University for Women

The Asian University for Women (AUW) is an independent, international university based in Bangladesh. AUW is dedicated to excellence in women's education and leadership development through both a technical and humanistic liberal arts and sciences curriculum. It was conceived in 2000 following the publication of "Higher Education in Developing Countries: Peril and Promise" by The World Bank/UN Task Force on Higher Education and Society, and it was later established through the Asian University for Women Act, 2006, when the Parliament of Bangladesh ratified the Charter of the Asian University for Women. AUW seeks to graduate women who are skilled and innovative professionals, service-oriented leaders in the businesses and communities in which they serve, and promoters of intercultural understanding and sustainable human and economic development in Asia and throughout the world. AUW currently has over 1700 students from 17 countries (Afghanistan, Bangladesh, Bhutan, Cambodia, China, India, Indonesia, Laos, Malaysia, Myanmar, Nepal, Pakistan, Palestine, Sri Lanka, Timor Leste, Syria and Vietnam), who are mostly first generational learners from diverse socio-economic backgrounds.

HSBC has a longstanding commitment to supporting the communities in which it operates and a significant portion of HSBC's work is directed towards helping people develop the employability skills they need to thrive. Through an initiative called 'Future Skills', HSBC provides 21st century skills to the community. The HSBC-AUW School of Apparel aims to address current gaps in developing management resources in partnership with international universities and also to drive women leadership for the apparel sector. The HSBC-AUW management education program will be tailored for Apparel industry leadership roles, incorporating aspects of Environment, Social and Governance (ESG). HSBC will support the program through providing initial setup support for the School of Apparel, HSBC Scholarships to AUW graduates, engagement with apparel industry stakeholders to drive thought leadership, and instituting an Advisory Board with key stakeholders from the industry.

HSBC-AUW School of Apparel

AUW in association with HSBC Bangladesh has established HSBC-AUW School of Apparel to offer one-year full-time MS (Master of Science) program in Apparel and Fashion Business Management. The MS in Apparel and Fashion Business Management program seeks to create a pool of expertly trained women from Bangladesh who will go on to manage local businesses. The program will build executive talent and enable enduring skill formation within the country while contributing towards the social goals of sustainability and women empowerment. Academic Excellence, Industry Relevance and Social Significance would be the defining features of the Programme. The program aims to seek excellence in terms of attracting top quality students, first-rate quality faculty with state-of-the-art curriculum, and placement in leading organizations. The program is designed and delivered by faculty from leading international universities and institutions like The Hong Kong Polytechnic University, renowned for fashion management and apparel manufacturing education. The RMG companies, including manufacturers and vendors, as well as global retailers, would be prospective recruiters of future graduates.

Program Outcomes

Through curated courses, the young professionals will develop technological know-how, superior communication skills and contemporary knowledge needed for Apparel and Fashion Business Management, enabling them to directly enter the RMG industry in Bangladesh in middle and senior leadership roles. The ideal outcome would be for these companies to hire the students upon graduation. For the employing companies, these graduates offer a sustainable solution to their people and talent needs at managerial levels and minimize costs and lead times involved in hiring overseas executives.

Program Structure

The Program consists of twelve-months of academic instruction, a two-month internship in an RMG company and completion of a capstone project. The students will return to campus at the end of the internship to present their experiences and share their learnings. All students will undergo an industry immersion before starting the program. The program will have 12 core courses covering functional areas of management, apparel, design, apparel manufacturing, retailing and merchandising, and 12 intensive modules covering a range of management concepts, skills and tools. These courses are carefully curated to impart relevant state-of-the-art knowledge and skills. Academic learning will be supplemented through periodic guest lectures from leaders in both industry and academia. All students will be awarded a MS (Master of Science) in Apparel and Fashion Business Management degree on successful completion of the program.
